Terms and Conditions regarding International Society for Mycotoxicology Member (ISM) access to the electronic editions of Food Additives and Contaminants.

Dear ISM Member

As you know, a subscription to Food Additives and Contaminants in online-only edition is available to individual Society members as a benefit of society membership.

In subscribing to any online-only package, you must agree to the Terms and Conditions that Taylor & Francis and the International Society for Mycotoxicology have agreed to implement, viz:

Online access, either as part of the “online-only” package, is offered to you with a single user, non-networkable licence. This licence requires you to warrant that the online edition, and e.g., full-text journal article:

- is for the private use of the individual member and will not be made available to other persons;
- will only be accessed via a private or home telephone line;
- will not be networked to any other site, nor posted to a library or public web site, nor in any way used to substitute for an existing or potential library or other subscription.

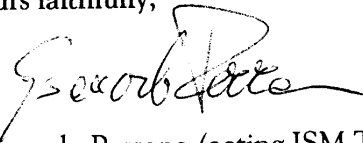

Any Society member who is discovered to be in breach of these conditions will have their access to the electronic edition of the journal terminated. Taylor & Francis also reserves the right to surcharge the Society member for the equivalent cost of a full rate subscription.

We trust that you will understand that these terms and conditions are to protect the copyright of the Journal and its authors, as well as to assure that the commercial interests of Taylor & Francis and thus, indirectly, the Society, are not compromised.

I hope that you are able to sign the attached undertaking, and return it to the Society Office. Unless we receive that signed undertaking, we will not confirm your subscription to the online edition of Food Additives and Contaminants. Upon receipt of your signed undertaking Taylor & Francis will be in touch to advise upon how to set up your online access.

Yours faithfully,

Giancarlo Perrone (acting ISM Treasurer)
Representative for International Society for Mycotoxicology
